

10 garage organization tips that still work in March

Not a makeover, a set of rules. Zone by how often you reach for things, standardize the tote, respect the shelf's weight rating, and photograph every bin so you never open six to find one.

- ☐ Zone by frequency: weekly within five steps of the door, yearly at the ceiling and far wall
- ☐ One tote size and brand for the yearly band, bought in one trip, two kept empty
- ☐ Labels on the short side at eye level and on the lid; readable from six feet
- ☐ Heavy totes between knee and shoulder; shelf ratings read and respected; tall units anchored
- ☐ Clear totes for things you hunt for, opaque for bulk you fetch by name
- ☐ One shelf (or two totes) left empty on purpose
- ☐ Everything with a handle hung; twice-a-year items overhead
- ☐ Paint, food, electronics, candles and paper moved indoors; propane and fuel limits checked
- ☐ Ten-minute reset after every project; donate box within five steps of the door
- ☐ Top-down photo of every tote before the lid closes; search before you buy

Read the full post with the why behind each tip:

<https://storagebuddy-ai.com/blog/garage-organization-tips>

Snap it · Store it · Find it — storagebuddy-ai.com